when communication is critical

COMMUNICATION AND SECURITY FOR FIRE STATIONS, POLICE STATIONS AND AMBULANCE SERVICES

Crisis, conflict and emergency service units have demanding, varied and time pressured roles to play in our society. It is their important responsibility to protect life and property but also to remain accessible to their colleagues at all times in order to work effectively.

Back at base, it is equally important that the buildings remain secure, safe and protected places for the personnel as well as visitors.

Pro700 communication and security solutions meet the requirements of both the emergency services and the public. This simple solution includes entrance stations at the emergency base integrated with surveillance cameras for quick and safe entry control. Additional intercom stations in common areas such as front desks, offices, exercise and relaxation rooms as well as loudspeakers in parking and other public areas ensure a highly efficient notification system.

The Pro700 system is a quick response mechanism which makes it extremely easy to make a public announcement or a call for assistance, both publicly and discreetly.

In small police stations, the Pro700 is ideal for interrogation rooms – a hidden button initiates a silent alarm to other stations in the system and the custom-made cell call system with vandal-proof stations makes communication with inmates safe and easy. Each cell may also have a local call indication lamp for time saving responses by the guard in the corridor whilst guard and prisoner security is maintained through the use of an additional 'scream alarm' function.

Intercoms at emergency units provide safety and reliability for personnel, improved public service and make optimal use of the human resources available.
